DAIRY PRODUCTS FARMER TOURISTS AT THE NATIONAL TO VISIT ROCK CO.

Cheese, Ice Cream, Butter and Milk Manufacturers to Hold Conferences.

An additional award for better exhibits, in the shape of a banner, has been decided upon by the National Dairy exposition, opening in Milwaukee, Wis., on Sept. 27.

This banner will be given to the state buttermakers' association having the largest percentage of its members entering exhibits. No state will be entitled to compete unless 20 entries are received. This method of award, the officials of the exposition believe, will give an even chance to all states, regardless of size. Officials of the National Creamery Institute, association of which H. C. Larson, Madison, is president, are confident the award will stimulate entries at the national show.

While ice cream men are not holding a convention in connection with the dairy show, nevertheless a large delegation of factory operators will be there on Oct. 2 to confer with the smaller cities and manufacturing interests of the middle west. Delegation from all points are assured, however, according to J. C. Mansfield, Milwaukee chairman.

The entire cheese trade will be under observation at the exposition in Milwaukee, and factories not only from all over Wisconsin, but from distant points will assemble at the dairy show. Special prizes to be awarded show visitors will include cheese, as well as butter products.

Milk dealers, working under the direction of Robert Trapp, are confident that their side of the dairy industry will be represented well. The latest types of bottling, washing, pasteurizing and handling milk will be on exhibition in the machinery section. In addition, the International Milk Dealers' association will meet in convention.

PLENTY OF HAY EVEN IF CORN CROP SHORT

A 50 percent increase in time hay production is forecasted by the U. S. Department of Agriculture in the recent estimate for Wisconsin. Lavestock will have plenty of timothy, alfalfa and clover this winter if not plenty of corn.

The forecast places the production for the state at 5,512,000 tons, as compared with 4,250,000 tons produced last year. The average production for the United States is 4,712,000 tons.

In the event there is a short corn crop, the bumper hay crop will do much to make up the deficit. Corn is coming into more popular favor as a livestock feed. Prohibition failed to stop barley production for farmers. The fact that corn has been used for many years has led Wisconsin in the production of barley, a favorite crop on the prairie land.

HEALTH REPORTS FOR AUGUST FILED

In her last report as school nurse, Miss Grace Amerpohl lists the inspection during August of 91 children, 100 hours office work and 11 home calls. Miss Hilda Anderson, visiting nurse, in her August report shows 102 visits to patients in 21 homes. She was away on her vacation half the month. Dr. L. J. Woodworth, sanitary inspector, now on his vacation, reports 131 inspections, 12 investigations of 21 complaints, 76 interviews, 10 after inspections, 30 letters, 10 office work, five hours' milk inspection, 10 interviews on milk, and 20 notices sent out.

HALF A VOTE IN CITY OF JANESVILLE

But Heavier Than Usual in a Primary—Some of City Results.

The city of Janesville cast 5,571 votes in the election Tuesday. It is a little more than half the vote of the city were it all to be polled at one election. The total is 10,222. But it was a very efficient vote so far as the successful candidates were concerned. It gave Blanchard for assembly, 1,669 majority over Bach, gave Coffey 2,411 over Christensen for district commissioner and secured a majority of 416 over Prentiss for congress. In one of the most bitter contests seen in Janesville and Rock county in years it gave Lynn Wheeler a majority of 416 over John Nelson and added in carrying the county that much for the re-election of the current candidate. But he had a walkaway. It was thought Wheeler would make some showing but he was left in the cold from the first returns everywhere in the county and will not be sheriff. There will be a new deal in the county in the sheriff's job.

Blanche's Poor Run
Blanche ran poorly in the city, though the Fourth and Fifth wards called up heavy votes for him, as they did for some of the other La Follette candidates. That vote carried the county for Cooper and made it possible for him to get out of Janesville with only 616 lead, Janesville and Milton remain the leading republican centers with the heaviest votes for Cooper.

Surely, though the Sixth ward was the champion in the city. In the candidacy of Zimmerman for secretary of state everyone seemed to be in harmonious accord and he received several thousand votes from the old line republicans as well as from the people who voted for La Follette.

Women Organized
The women's organization headed by Mrs. Abbie Helms was a potent factor in the city in getting out a heavy vote. It was an excellently organized group and with headquarters established at a central point the work of getting the vote to the polls was done with mechanical precision. This vote for La Follette and Coffey was undoubtedly largely the result of this organized effort on the part of the women.

Blanchard for assembly ran like a scored match in every precinct of the First assembly district. He carried all of them by comfortable leads. Blanchard carried Evansville by 241 and Milton village by 135. In Milton township he faced even better with a lead of 159. Lima gave Bach only six votes, with 83 for George Blanchard.

LABOR CHIEFS SEE REAL DIFFERENCES IN PARTY ATTITUDE

ocrats in the senate but it must have been surprised to receive the support of John W. Davis, who has been characterized as a middle of the road candidate on labor questions, sometimes in the past arguing the cause of the employer and sometimes the employee. His unqualified support of the principle of the Howell-Barley bill is an event of tremendous significance in the campaign, for if he can endorse it, the measure he may be found fighting alongside of Senator La Follette on other questions vitally affecting agriculture as well as labor.

Senator La Follette, however, was alone in his outright declaration in favor of the repeal of the Esch-Cummins transportation act. This is another acid test of radicalism as against conservatism. Wrapped up in that act is the problem of freight rates, the radicals contending that since the railroads are permitted to earn a certain per cent of their investment, they manage to pile up costs and operate their systems so extravagantly that there is no opportunity to obtain lower freight rates. Under the transportation act the interstate commerce commission cannot reduce freight rates unless it reduces the earning power of the railroads. Senator La Follette would repeal the rate-making sections of the present law and perform a surgical operation on the whole railroad problem.

Wages Rates Reduced
John W. Davis has indicated merely that he wished freight rates reduced and he has expressed the belief that some way could be found, but he has not specifically pointed the way. Unless he is willing to attack the transportation act and point to a constructive remedy, many of the radicals in the west will not follow him. As for President Coolidge, he has committed himself definitely to the retention of the transportation act with respect to the earning clauses for railroads and has said he would appoint a commission of inquiry to study the problem of freight rates.

Mr. Coolidge made an important declaration on the general principles affecting labor. He repeated what President Harding said about the right of labor to collective bargaining and has made his position absolutely clear on a compulsory arbitration, which has been one of the tenets of manufacturing associations and anti-labor speakers for years.

Mr. Coolidge's statement that he could not reconcile compulsory arbitration with individual freedom will be quoted for many years to come.

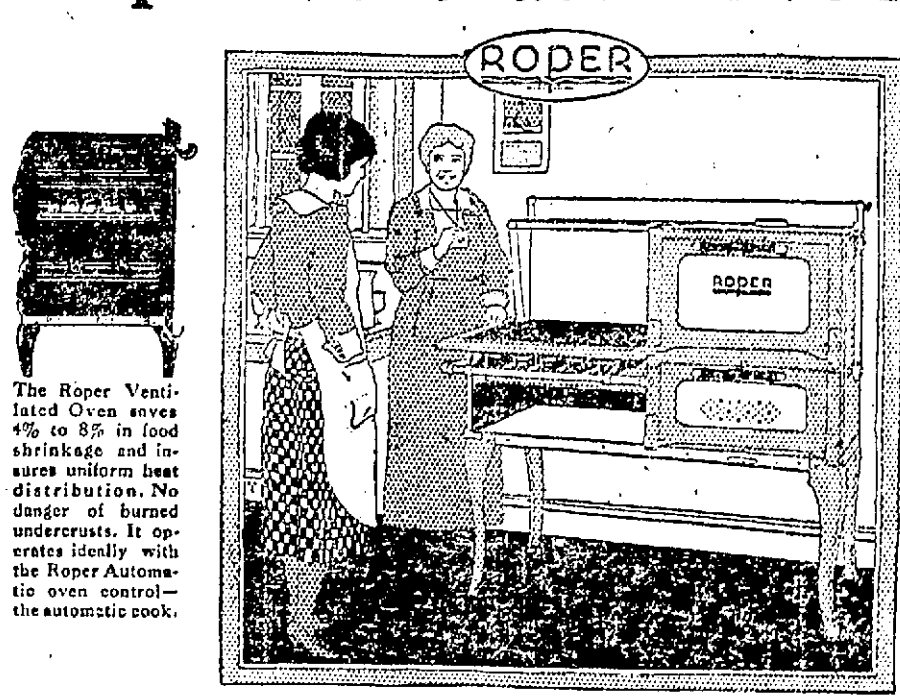

No political candidate and no president has ever come out flatly in favor of compulsory arbitration of labor disputes, so in a sense what Mr. Coolidge says is merely the same doctrine that has been held by his predecessors; but in view of Mr. Coolidge's position in the Boston political strike he has from time to time been on the defensive with respect to labor. His speech on Monday is the clearest exposition he has yet made and it will be found adherence to a number of principles for which labor leaders have constantly fought, though labor's national spokesmen probably will say the president did not go far enough. Mr. Coolidge made it clear he would not go over to any class or group. Yet that is what labor and agriculture really want. Senator La Follette has already done so. John W. Davis is on the edge and nearer to the La Follette viewpoint today than he was in his speech of acceptance.

Charles C. Dawes' observation that there was no room for compromise between radicalism and conservatism and that the democratic candidate must go with one or the other, is slowly being corroborated, though the chances are Mr. Davis in the end will never go completely over to the La Follette standpoint, but will never himself closer to the Wisconsin Senator than to President Coolidge.

On none of the proposed changes in the constitution will the democratic nominee follow La Follette. Incidentally it is significant that Mr. Davis has come out against a federal department of education. Strange as it may seem, this has been tied up with religious objections. Whipple, a few years ago, as the Catholic church had been supported in congressional elections to be one of the leading opponents of such a department. Mr. Davis says he thinks the educational problem should be left to the states. To a certain extent this will help get for Mr. Davis much of the anti-Klan vote which he began to court with his anti-Klan speech.

Get-Ready-for-School-Week

School has begun. In this busy week of preparation mothers will appreciate the readiness of this store with both high and low shoes for boys and girls from kindergarten age to high school years.

We encourage particular care in the selection and fitting of all children's shoes—and particularly so of the smaller folks. If any of them have gone barefoot or worn very soft, easy shoes or sandals this summer, be careful about crowding their feet back into last spring's shoes, for growing feet develop rapidly, you know, and part of that "spreading" is natural growth.
